How child-friendly is the Government of Malawi?

The African Report on Child Wellbeing provides an insight into the wellbeing of children in Africa and assesses the extent to which governments meet their obligations, through a ground-breaking Child-friendliness Index – developed by The African Child Policy Forum (ACPF).

The Government of Malawi was found to be one of the most child-friendly governments in Africa

The Government of Malawi emerged in the top ten most child-friendly governments of Africa. This was mainly for two reasons: first, as a result of the Government of Malawi's high commitment in allocating a relatively higher share of the national budget to provide for the basic needs of children; and secondly, as a result of the effort and success in achieving relatively favourable wellbeing outcomes as reflected on children themselves.

How well does the Government of Malawi perform in protecting its children?

A number of indicators have been used to assess governments' performance in protecting children against abuse and exploitation (see report for the detail).

The ranking puts the Government of Malawi 26th in respect of legal protection of children, indicating that it has performed fairly well in laying appropriate legal and policy foundations for the protection of children. Malawi has ratified four of the eight relevant child rights treaties (see Table 1).

Malawi ranked 26th for its effort to put in place an appropriate legal and policy framework for children.

The Government of Malawi performed well in respect of other indicators relating to corporal punishment, policy for free primary education, juvenile justice system, national plan of action and a government body for coordinating the national strategy for children (see Table 2).

How does the Government of Malawi perform in providing for children?

Provision for basic needs of children is measured based on two elements: budgetary commitment and child-related outcomes achieved. All the indicators used for budgetary commitment and child-related outcomes were combined to yield governments' performance score for provision of basic services for children (see Figure 1).

Malawi ranked 4th in the combined index for provision of basic services for children

The other set of indicators refer to the outcomes achieved for children. They measure governments' performances in terms of objective results achieved in services accessed and results reflected on children themselves. Table 3, below, summarises the indicators and the data used for this particular sub-dimension for Malawi.
